From Law Day...

For the 24th consecutive year, Birmingham-based law firm Goodwin & Scieszka sponsored a free legal aid clinic called "Law Day" at its offices. On Saturday, June 11, more than 30 attorneys donated their time to give free legal advice on all areas of the law. In addition to pro bono counseling, visitors got free hot dogs, prizes, and free bike helmets for all children in conjunction with the Michigan Association for Justice's Helmet Safety Campaign. Scott Goodwin (left) and James Scieszka were happy to welcome the public to the event. "In Michigan's challenging economic times, folks really need the advice of a lawyer and we're able to give that to them free of charge," said Goodwin. The day also featured Detroit Tigers' mascot Paws, live broadcasts with local radio personalities, and performances by local musicians. "Basically the big thing is giving back to the community and making sure that these folks are being taken care of."
